KILLS WIFE AND SELF AS CHILDREN WATCH

Dayton, Ohio, Sept. 25.—Joseph Parmenatis, 35, of Detroit, shot and killed his wife here today and committed suicide. Police said the tragedy followed discovery that his wife was living with another man.
Their two children, girls aged 2 and 5, witnessed the slaying and suicide.

UNIVERSITY PRESIDENT OFFERS FREE TUITION

The president of the University of South Carolina has offered free tuition in all courses at the university to enlisted men of Camp Jackson, S. C. This is an excellent opportunity for young men who have not completed their education to enter one of the best colleges in the south. Camp Jackson is situated near enough to the university to enable men to attend classes at this institution daily and entrants will not be required to perform other duties while attending school.

This is a short cut to a commission in the Regular Army, as the U. S. has military training in connection with the other studies. The President of the United States is authorized to appoint 180 enlisted men to West Point every year. A short course at the U. S. C. would put the finishing touches on your preparatory course for West Point.

The sixth U. S. infantry is now stationed at Camp Jackson. This is one of the oldest and best outfits in the U. S. Army. Camp Jackson is one of the best situated camps in the country.

Information as to the above can be obtained by calling at the U. S. Army Recruiting Station at 624, King Street. Victory medals are now being issued at the Army Recruiting Station. All men who were in the service between April 6, 1917 and Nov. 11, 1918 are entitled to victory medals. Bring your discharge certificate with you. The office is open for Victory Medals between nine and five daily and seven to eight Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays. The office is open for other purposes daily and Sunday from 7 a. m. to 9 p. m.

LUTHERANS TO HOLD MISSION FESTIVAL TOMORROW

The annual Mission Festival of the Lutheran Church will be held tomorrow afternoon at 3:15 p. m. in Immanuel Church, corner Cameron and Alfred streets. The Rev. J. George Spilman of Baltimore, the secretary of the Eastern District Mission Board of the Missouri Synod, will deliver the mission sermon. All strangers and Lutherans are invited to join in this service to which the sister congregation of Washington have been invited. The usual morning service at 11 will be dropped.

Mass Meeting Planned

Cox-Roosevelt and Moore Club to be Organized Wednesday at Opera House

A democratic mass meeting will be held Wednesday night in the opera house for the purpose of organizing a Cox, Roosevelt and Moore Club. This club was to have been organized last night following the mass meeting in the opera house, but owing to the lateness of the hour it was decided to postpone its organization until Wednesday night. It is expected that there will be a large turnout of democrats at the meeting Wednesday night.

NURSES' NOTICE

At a recent meeting of the Alexandria Hospital Alumnae, it was decided that in compliance with the ruling made by the Virginia State Board of Nursing, the nurses belonging to that organization in this city, will hereafter maintain the following standard of charges for professional services. Contingent diseases and obstetrical cases $40 per week, all other cases $35 per week. These rates to go into effect October 1, 1920. 230-2p

Republicans on Fire

Democratic Firemen Extinguish Blaze and Return to Democratic Mass Meeting

While the democrats were holding a mass meeting in the opera house last night someone in the rooms of the Harding, Coolidge and Brooks Club at King and Washington streets threw a cigar stump on the awning below setting fire to it and causing a fire alarm. The alarm, however, failed to cause but few other than firemen to leave the opera house and soon they were back to hear the eloquent speakers tell of the great work of the democrats after quickly subduing the republican blaze.

DIED

CHAUNCEY—On Friday, September 24, at 4 p. m., at the residence of his sister Mrs. A. C. Whedbee, Seabrook, Md., CLINTON C. CHAUNCEY, Funeral at 11 a. m., Monday from Grace Episcopal Church; Alexandria Friends and relatives invited to attend. 230-1t

Secretary of War Baker Addresses Democrats

Electrifies Large Audience With His Speech On League Of Nations Delivered at Opera House.

CHARLES C. CARLIN PRESIDES

Able Address on Achievements of the Democratic Party Made by Representative R. Walton Moore—Mr. Moore Also Tells of Alexandria's Progress Under Democratic Administration.

NEWTON D. BAKER

The League of Nations abolishes surprise war and provides an agency where controversies can be presented and all sides heard and also provides for a gradual disarmament said Secretary of War Newton D. Baker in addressing a democratic mass meeting held in the opera house last night which was attended by a large gathering of both men and women.

Under the provisions of the league he declared the President of the United States can't send American soldiers overseas unless war is declared and that must be done by Congress and in the league of the U. S. always has an absolute veto.

Referring to Senator Harding's attitude on the league he said that one time the senator says, "America First" and the next time, "It is too weak its useless." Thirty-nine nations he said have accepted the league and if we stay out of it we make a separate alliance with Germany and the other nations that opposed us during the world war. The worldly wise men he asserted are saying the thirty-nine nations entering the league are all wrong.

The speaker predicted that the next war will be worse than the war just closed. He asked "Shall we wait till it comes?" Continuing he said: "We should put our nation so that it will be remotely possible or impossible for another war of such a character. Senators Johnson and Borah he said claim Harding said we scrapped the League of Nations and Former Attorney General Wickersham after a talk with Harding declared Harding would go into the league.

Secretary Baker said we ought to go into the league with enthusiasm and all of the moral forces of the United States to make it succeed. After the war begun he said we found out that the world is tied together by lines of trade and finance. Continuing he said: The world today is one market. We are in the world and of the world. There is no such way as trying to separate ourselves from the rest of the world. It is no longer possible to wait and decide afterward. We cannot wait and watch the world die as if stricken by pestilence."

Concluding his remarks Secretary Baker asserted that the salvation of the world rests on us as if establishing a new kingdom and he said he prayed God that all will be on guard on this question and vote in establishing a new kingdom of righteousness.

The speaker said that never before in the history of America have the people had an issue that will so permanently effect their welfare and the peace of the nation as they have in this election. No act in your life will so effect your nation to live in peace as in this election and the way you are to cast your vote declared Mr. Baker.

Secretary Baker in opening his address gave many of his hearers a surprise when he told them that thirty years ago he attended the Episcopal High School west of this city and was not a stranger to Alexandria he having been a frequent visitor here while a student at that school.

In introducing Secretary of War Baker, Mr. Carlin after complimenting him on his splendid work, expressed hope that the next democratic nominee for President would be Secretary Baker.

The Secretary was given a rousing ovation when he appeared on the platform. Representative Moore spoke on Alexandria's great national advantages and predicted the harnessing of the power of Great Falls. It is a significant fact he said that the progress made in Alexandria was accomplished under the democratic administration and under Representative Carlin's regime.

He then told of the highway construction work in this section, the building of the highway between Washington and Alexandria, the construction of the road to Camp Humphreys, the two fine military camps built near Alexandria, the erection in Alexandria of the Naval Torpedo Station costing about two and a half million dollars, and he also referred to the big plant of the Virginia Shipbuilding Corporation built here under the present administration. The republicans he asserted are suffering from arrested development and he told of how they refused an appropriation of $120,000 for the building of a much needed addition to the Alexandria postoffice. The speaker also showed that under democratic rule the bank deposits in Alexandria have increased from $2,500,000 to $5,230,000.

"Tell me one single thing the republicans would do for Alexandria if they were in power" asked Mr. Moore.

He went into detail of the splendid achievements of the democratic party and its glorious record. Mr. Moore also spoke of the work of constructing the Little River Turnpike road from Alexandria to Winchester now in course of construction, a part of the funds for the work being provided by the federal government.

The democratic party he said is for labor and he outlined its foreign policy and also spoke on the league of nations. The party's record he said is one which all should be proud of.

Mr. Moore said he voted for the return of the railroads to private ownership because he did not believe it good time for the government to experiment with railroad. In so voting he said he believed it was the wish of the majority of his constituents in the eighth district. Concluding he said his record was an open book and he had fought a good fight and kept the faith.

The meeting was called to order shortly after 8 o'clock by Charles Bendheim, chairman of the city democratic committee, who in a short address introduced Former Representative C. C. Carlin, the latter presiding Mr. Carlin, in introducing Representative Moore referred to his splendid record in Congress and declared Mr. Moore need only be introduced as your present and future Congressman.

The stage was decorated with palms ferns and flags.

Those on the stage were former Congressman Charles C. Carlin, Charles Bendheim, chairman of the city democratic committee; Judge Robinson Monroe, Mayor James M. Duncan; F. F. Marbury, president of the board of aldermen; H. R. Burke, president of common council; city treasurer

Thomas W. Robinson; commonwealth attorney Howard W. Smith, Capt. Geo. H. Evans, business manager of the chamber of commerce; Councilmen Claude W. Fletcher and E. F. Tiger; J. Fred Birrell and George K. Pickett, M. B. Harlow, D. R. Stansbury, clerk of common council; Judge C. E. Nicol, James R. Caten, J. W. Collins and Dr. Kate Waller Barrett.

Visiting Pastors at Free Methodist Church Tomorrow

Rev. John Cavanaugh will preach in the Free Methodist Church, 424 South Lee street, Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. Rev. Cavanaugh has served twice as pastor of the Free Methodist Church of this city, and is very well known as a street preacher. He will also preach on the corner of Washington and King streets at 7:30 on Saturday night.

Rev. Moses Hayden, a former resident of this city, who has been residing near Wilkes-Barre, Pa., and has just been appointed as pastor of the Free Methodist Church of that city, will preach at the church of his denomination in this city Sunday night at 8 o'clock. All are invited to attend these services.

Woman's Rally

Speakers Urge Importance of Voting to Potomac Residents

The women of the town of Potomac Arlington county, last night attended a mass meeting in Mount Vernon school and heard addresses on the importance of women voting delivered by Mrs. Lucile Boggs of Washington Wade Ball and Walter U. Varney of Arlington county and Mr. Gelhorn, the latter of Washington. Miss Lou D. Gary presided. Many women of the county already have paid their taxes and qualified to vote.

Anti-Tuberculosis

Total of 1794 Visits Made During Past Four Months

A meeting of the directors of the Alexandria Anti-Tuberculosis Society was held Thursday night at the home of its president, Mrs. Thomas W. Robinson. The report of the work done by the visiting nurses during May, June, July and August showed a total number of visits made during that time of 1,794.

May tuberculosis cases 98, other 495, total 593; June tuberculosis cases 98, other 399, total 497; July tuberculosis cases 39, other 359, total 398; August tuberculosis cases 15, other 381, total 396.

That the society is doing splendid work in safeguarding public health and attending the sick in the community is evidenced by the large amount of work done by its faithful and efficient nurses.

The tuberculosis clinic continues each Wednesday, between 1 and 2 p. m., at a room near the city health office. Persons suspecting tubercular trouble and desiring examination should call at that time. No charge is made for such examination.

Miss Sarah Shotts, the senior nurse of the society in length of service will be granted a leave shortly to attend the course in public health nursing given in Richmond. This is the same course taken last winter by Miss Bristow of the Anti-Tuberculosis Society.

Fredericksburg, Va., Sept. 25.—Rev. Samuel A. Wallis, D. D., of Alexandria, and his brother, Dr. Wallis, of North Carolina, have made a donation to the Mary Washington Hospital in Fredericksburg, of $600 as a memorial to their sister, the late Miss Anne E. Wallis. These gentlemen formerly lived in Stafford County, near this city.

Babe Ruth Whacks Out His Fifty-First Homer

New York, Sept. 25.—Babe Ruth whacked out his fiftieth and fifty-first homers in the Yankee-Washington double header at the Polo Grounds yesterday.

Each circuit wallop was made in the first inning. In the first game Babe picked one of Pitcher Acosta's corner balls and lifted it into the right field grand stand. Jim Shaw, who pitched the second game, was the juggler's second victim.

It is estimated that thousands of dollars changed hands today as a result of the two homers, many fans having taken the short end of bets that Babe Ruth would not reach the half century mark this year.

Day's Developments in Reduction of Prices

Flour dropped $2 a barrel in Chicago as a result of a sharp decline in wheat quotations. The Chicago grain market closed semidemoralized. Wheat prices dropped 10 cents on the Baltimore market.

Live stock prices also showed marked reductions in Chicago.

Following its announcement of price reductions from July catalogue quotations, the largest mail order house in Chicago announced that it has retained $5,000,000 to its customers.

DEMOCRATIC RALLY

Although he barely touched the crest of his subject, "The League of Nations," Secretary of War Newton D. Baker last night held his audience spellbound with his masterly explanation of the aims and purposes of the league. The Republican bank that is being spread broadcast that this country would be compelled to send her sons overseas every time there was trouble was shattered by the speaker who told his hearers in plain words that only an act of Congress can do such a thing. Thirty-five nations the speaker told his audience have accepted the league and some of the "world wise" are saying it is all wrong.

Representative R. Walton Moore gave an able account of his splendid work in Congress and said he always would be at the service of the people of the eighth district. In addition to discussing the league of nations, told of the splendid work being done for good roads by the Democratic party and of the federal aid being furnished by that party for the work. Under the democratic administration he said Alexandria has prospered greatly with its great industrial plants and he cited the greatly increased bank deposits in the city as an evidence of prosperity under Democratic rule. The speaker praised the efficient work of former Congressman Charles C. Carlin in Congress. In his usual graceful manner Representative Carlin presided and made an excellent presiding officer.

DECLINE IN PRICES.

Residents of Alexandria in common with everyone else throughout the country are gratified to read the dispatches announcing that the high cost of living is coming down. Each day for the past week brings additional news of declines in almost every article of food and clothing being used.

Ever since the war started the American people have been compelled to pay extravagant prices for their food and clothing. The wages paid has not kept progress with the steadily increased cost of living hence the wage earner is probably worse off than before. Everything back to normal will be better for all parties concerned and the sooner the better.

WEEK'S MOVIE LIST

Never has a more lovable or heart touching play been presented to the screen followers of Alexandria, than King W. Vidors great production, which was shown at the Richmond theatre last night, "The Jack Knife Man."

(An exact portrayal of life in a houseboat along the Mississippi river together with heart throbs aplenty, when Peter Lane, the lovable old character who has the principal part in the picture, is left with a little boy on his hands after he had befriended the mother and she had died of exposure. The fight the old man had to keep the child and the homely, lovable scenes presented make this picture one of the best that has been seen here for many days.

Norma Talmadge, the leading feminine star of the screen, will be seen at the Richmond on Monday and Tuesday in Henry Sydnor Harrison's great story, "Captivating Mary Carey." There is no greater actress in this old novel, "The Strange Case of Flindon today and every movie patron knows that when her name is advertised they are sure of something out of the ordinary.

One of the most versatile actors on the stage today will appear, at the Richmond Wednesday, when the famous Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde, will be presented with Sheldon Lewis in the title role. Accompanying this big production is a new Paramount Mack Sennett comedy, "A Lady's Tailor," featuring Ed Stirling, Harriett Hammond, Eda Thatcher and Billy Bevan.

In a play that goes back to the time of the French Revolution and which was written by Charles Dickens many years ago, William Farnum, the great Fox star will be the attraction at the Richmond Thursday of next week. The play is "A Tale of Two Cities," and the leading role is played by Farnum.

For Friday and Saturday, the Richmond offers one of the biggest screen successes of the entire year, Annette Kellerman, the Diving Venus, in "What Women Love." This picture is featured by a number of aquatic stunts that are out of the ordinary, one of them being a death grapple with a brute of a man under the waters of the ocean.

Several good offerings are on deck for the Ingomar theatre during the coming week, the first being on Monday when William S. Hart will be shown in "The Primal Lure." This is followed on Tuesday by Robert W. Chambers' great play, "The Fighting Chance" Wednesday Cleo Madison will be shown in "The Girl from Nowhere"; Thursday Mabel Julienne Scott and Niles Welch in "Reclaimed" Friday is Billie Burke in "Away Goes Prudence" and Saturday, Leah Baird in "Cynthia of the Minute."

A CARD

My failure to put in an appearance at the trial of the Police Officer before the Police Commissioners on the night of September 22, 1920, can very readily be attributed to the fact that having been required to present my charges against one of the officers in question in writing, and not having been summoned nor told when nor where to appear in person to press said charges, and not as appearance would indicate that I was desirous of having charges squashed, as I am ready and willing to appear personally before said Police Commissioners at any time and place they desire to indicate, in order to substantiate my complaint.

UNLITY is the dominating characteristic of the new Nineteen Twenty One Buick Valve-in-Head Series.

Buick engineers have always made service and power their leading principles and those who buy motor cars on this business basis will find in the new Buick series high-powered transports just as strong, durable and dependable as the highest engineering skill can make them.

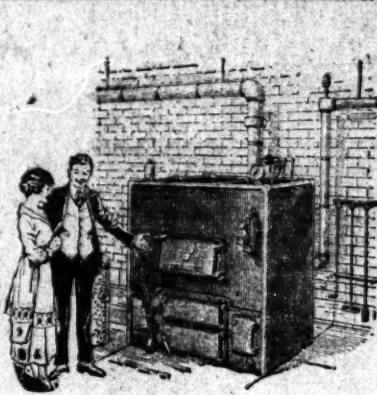

While service and power are emphasized, the new Buick models are cars of striking beauty, highly attractive in lines and in appointments. In resilient spring suspension, making riding smooth and easy, and in the generous room provided for the full number of passengers, they offer a high degree of comfort.

The roomy, commodious new Buick seven passenger open car is a happy selection, combining comfort and utility with extra passenger capacity to meet every need.

OF TUNGSTEN Discovery and Use of This Great Material Has Made Elec- tric Lighting an Absolute Necessity

A casual look at the filament of the incandescent lamp in your library or the tiny spark coil contacts on your automobile brings no suggestion of a romance of science which lies back of those devices. It is the Romance of "Tungsten," one of the heaviest of metals, a metal nearly 140 years old, but which resisted the efforts of mankind to make use of it in pure state for about 130 years. But the service pure tungsten has rendered the world in the last decade is almost "conquered" is almost great for calculation. Tungsten in various forms reduced America's electric light bill a billion dollars a year and more than doubled the usefulness of the incandescent lamp. Little tungsten kept the automobile industry alive during the war. It helped make possible the Coolidge X-ray tube with tungsten targets which enormously increased the value of the X-ray machine to mankind. With the plotron was built so that wireless telephony could be developed to useful and dependable point. With phonograph needles are being made more than 50 times as good as the steel and the fiber needles, heretofore the best that could be produced. Tungsten bullets might have served the recent war as projectiles hard enough to pierce the heaviest armor. Germans could put on their aircraft, for a few were made to prove their usefulness in that capacity, but the plan to use them was given up after a less expensive way to accomplish the result was discovered. Before the war only a few thousand tons of tungsten were mined in the world and the price of raw tungsten ranged around 90 cents a pound; but with the war came a tremendous demand for tool steel, hard enough to work at high speed even when red hot. Tungsten was required as an alloy to make such steel. The price rose steeply when the supply diminished before the sudden demand until it reached $7 to $8 a pound. The world's production in 1918 amounted to 35,800 tons. The control over the sources of it was 50 per cent American, and 35 per cent British. The price and production slumped with the end of the war until today raw tungsten can be bought for a little over a dollar a pound.

Most of the adaptations for tungsten are due to a discovery made by Dr. W. D. Coolidge, of the General Electric Company. He was the first man to find a way to "work" this most brittle of metals. He made it ductile and thereby hangs this tale.

For about 100 years tungsten had been known before it was put to any use whatever, even as a mere alloy. Its presence was first noticed by Scheele and Bergman in 1781. They found traces of it in a metal called scheelite and coined the name "tungsten" for it from the Swedish "tung" meaning heavy and "sten" for stone. In 1783 three Spaniards discovered tungsten in the mineral Wolfram. To this day there is little tungsten taken from any other minerals. It is found in small quantities in Cumberland, England; Limoges, France; and in parts of Connecticut and North Carolina, but most of it comes from Colorado, and China.

Extracted from these minerals and pulverized, tungsten was found useful in certain steel alloys. Mixed with an adhesive it was made into lamp filaments that were efficient but exceedingly fragile. However no metallurgist was able to discover a way to work pure tungsten. This was because in pure metallic form it is absolutely brittle! It confounded all experts with its utter intractability. The established processes in working other metals proved useless with tungsten.

Perhaps it was this very thing which finally brought about the harnessing of this valuable metal. Dr. Coolidge with the instinct of the true scientist pioneering in untrodden field tried ways that any metallurgist would have thought an idle waste of time. The result was that after long effort and many failures he finally made tungsten ductile and workable so that it could even be drawn like wire down almost to the gossamer fineness of spider's web and still be strong enough to permit its winding and curling into almost any shape. When he had done that he had conquered tungsten and made possible many devices which could never have been built without ductile tungsten.

The radical difference in workability between tungsten and normally ductile metals the difference which non-plust the scientific world for more than a century may be explained thus: Pure tungsten prest into bars in brittle after the very treatment which makes other metals most ductile. It differs from all other ductile metals in that when composed of grains it is extremely brittle at "room temperature," but is ductile at this temperature when fibrous.

Many an experimenter had sought to work tungsten mechanically. But none had ever succeeded in getting this intractable metal into a form suitable for mechanical working. Moissan by an electric furnace method, obtained tungsten in a porous condition which could be slightly compressed and the pores closed up by hammering when hot. However nobody in the world suspected at that time that if tungsten could be obtained and put into suitable condition and then mechanically worked at suitable temperature, its inherently brittle nature would gradually disappear. But nobody knew how even to make a start upon the problem of working tungsten.

To make any ordinary metal soft it is heated above its annealing point and then cooled down to room temperature. Doing this to tungsten however left it as brittle as ever.

Violating all metallurgical rules and working for years in utmost patience, Coolidge discovered the astonishing fact that the only way to make tungsten ductile was to mash tungsten's grains out fibrously thus make the metal ductile cold, and this he did by first heating it to a degree below its annealing point and then mechanically working it with infinite pains at a variety of heats, each cooler than the one before, until the metal got down to room temperature. A similar treatment, if applied to ordinary metals would destroy their ductility.

He worked out a process which, if followed without the slightest deviation, stretched the grains out, thus attaining ductility. But if the working varied from his process, failure resulted. The tungsten would smash to splinters at a stroke when it got cold.

Tungsten for Lamp Filaments. The greatest immediate use for it was in the making of electric lamp filaments. Previously the best filament was made of fine tungsten powder, mixed with a binder into a paste mass which was squirted through fine dies to produce fragile "wire."

This was an enormous improvement over the old-style carbon filament, thanks to the facts that tungsten, with a melting point of 3,350 degrees Centigrade will stand more heat than other metals and its vapor tension is so low that even under tremendous heats its volatile decomposition is slow. Tungsten even in this form made so good a lamp that it saved the American public a billion dollars a year on its electric light bill.

But filaments of those days could not withstand the slightest jar during the process of manufacture. They necessarily could not be strongly mounted in lamps.

Pure tungsten on the other hand drawn into filaments can stand almost anything. For one thing it is heavier than any other metal. Whereas wrought iron weighs 490 pounds per cubic foot, and lead 708 pounds, tungsten tips the beam at 1,193 pounds. Its tensile strength is startingly high. After it has been worked to draw wire of about a thousandth of an inch diameter, its tensile strength is no less than 600,000 pounds per square inch of cross-section. This is greater than the best piano wire!

To use tungsten in lamp manufacture, it is dried, mixed with thorium nitrate solution and then thinned with water into a batter. This is dried and heated at 2,000 degrees Fahrenheit for an hour in a silica or fire clay crucible to agglomerate the fine particles into coarser ones. The

Story Of A Bashful Man And Demure Maiden

Commences In Southern Virginia Ends
In Alexandria—A Realistic Romance

(BY T. M. ALLEN)

In a remote hamlet in northern Virginia live a demure maiden and a bashful man, who had for some years been living with but one and the same object before them. Both were hopeless victims of "love microbes," that were doing most effectual work under the direction of Cupid himself.

Finally Harry suddenly awoke up one day, and declared that procrastination was the thief of time and bliss—and he immediately set about to bring matters to a focus. Very soon there was a wedding, and it wasn't much longer before their Uncle Bill Taylor, of Alexandria wrote effusively of what he termed "gmt," and proposed that if they would locate here, he would start them up in life. Very soon they began to bid loved ones adieu and were soon speeding in this direction.

When the train pulled in, generous Uncle Bill was at the depot to greet them and welcome a much-elated couple, and after hearty congratulations, he conducted them straightway to the Hotel Rammel. It was at breakfast next morning while partaking of a tempting menu that was being politely served, that Uncle Bill first unfolded his plans to the appreciative newcomers obligating himself, first of all, to build and furnish for them a modern home. "But in the meantime," he said, you will find this hotel a pleasant and most agreeable place to live, since it is widely known as our best appointed and most zealously managed hotel and a favorite with the 'Knights of the Grip,' under the good management of Mr. W. L. Rammel who personally looks after the welfare of those sojourning under its roof.

"Come," said the generous uncle, rising from the breakfast table, "the pleasure is now mine to introduce you to our town, your future home. Then, too, I want to arrange to build the new house right away. And of course, it is important that we select a pleasant and healthful location, where we have agreeable environments about us." Uncle Bill was soon astride and the young couple eager and beaming with expectancy.

"First, we will go in and confer with Graham & Ogden our well-informed and wide awake real estate dealers here, where is always listed the best residence and business properties in town, or in the country about, that will be honestly represented." Just a little later the trio were courteously received at the office, and it wasn't long before Graham & Ogden had a check for an attractive residence site, "off" which Uncle Bill will at once have built a handsome residence.

"Now I am at sea," said Uncle Bill. "It befalls all how houses are built these days, considering the way they built them fifty years ago. Why, the modern houses of today are so much 'snappier' and have conveniences and comforts that one of my time never dreamed of. But I know who can help us out of this dilemma," said he suddenly remembering H. Herfurth, Jr., as a man of original ideas, and good taste in practical architecture and also as being actively associated with the building interests here. Herfurth, Jr., very soon

The reduced tungsten powder is poured into a steel mold which is a

STORY OF A BASHFUL MAN AND A DEMURE MAIDEN

furnished the plans for a most pleasing and pretentious $5,500 residence for the bride, who agreed to give them a turn-key job.

It is a renaissance of Corinthian effect, symmetrical in appearance and commodious to a degree in its interior arrangements, and it just what the bride had longed for—a real modern up to the minute home.

"Good lumber and good workmanship go hand in hand when it comes to building a house to last and look well," said Uncle Bill "to-much depends upon the quality of the mill work used in obtaining a pretty effect. Now, about the lumber, millwork and sundry requisites coming under this heading, I am going to see W. A. Smoot & Co., our live and best exporters of lumber and building material.

The yards, sheds and warehouses are always filled with rough and dressed lumber of all dimensions, and the manifold items in building material adequate to meet the demands of the exacting public. It is needless to say that W. A. Smoot & Co., did furnish the bill of lumber and every item for the whole job. Uncle Bill remarked that he found these people very prompt and agreeable to do business with.

"About the plumbing," remarked Uncle Bill, "we can't use too much care; for good health and many comforts are dependent upon sanitary plumbing and scientific ventilation and heating, and when coupled with the use of porcelain bath tubs, good sinks and handsome and appropriate fixtures, to say nothing of the conveniences, they combine a pleasing interior or finish which is most desirable. Now for a dependable job and to avoid encountering any trouble in after years, I am going to have Wm. Desmond to do the plumbing and heating," said Uncle Bill. "Then we can expect a square deal, and every thing done right for this is the kind of reputation that Wm. Desmond has long since won with a cognizant public for doing things where every facility is at hand for executing the best class of work, and to do it promptly too," he said.

"It is the task of the painter and decorator, too, that counts, much in obtaining artistic and harmonious results," chimed in the bride. "For said she, 'It is the painting and decorating when executed by capable artisans that adds so much to the attractiveness of both the exterior and interior of the house, making it pleasing and inviting.'"

"Then," interrupted Uncle Bill "I take no chances on botchery, but I'll phone J. S. Groves about these. He is an artist with the brush, employing all the time competent men, who wield the brush with dexterity, and if we give the painting paper-hanging and decorating to J. S. Groves we can rest assured of getting good workmanship and a well finished house painted and decorated in shipshape and on time too at a reasonable cost.

"In my earlier days," remarked Uncle Bill, "the practical use of electricity was unknown. It did not enter into the construction of a building at all, but it is different today. It is used for lighting, heating and cooking and the conveniences that it affords are manifold. Now, about the electrical equipment for our new house. I am going to see J. Kent White who will wire the house, install the fixtures, put the door bells and give us chandeliers and fixtures exquisite in taste and appropriateness and do everything right. I expect Hettie will want electric curling irons and flatirons, too. J. Kent White does everything electrical and is equipped for subserving the best interests of the people as an electrical engineer and contractor, and also as a dealer in electrical supplies and fixtures for any class of building as well as for automobiles.

"Well, it is up to me to furnish your new residence," remarked Uncle Bill, "and it shall be furnished in just as good taste and as completely as your judgment and taste will permit or dictate.

"How grand," she exclaimed, beaming with joy and expectancy Uncle Bill then bade the young couple come with him to Michelbach our live expert of furniture, and well-informed house furnisher, where is offered every thing that is smart, useful and dainty, needed to fit out the cottage or mansion on whatever scale desired. The trio was politely received at the store, where after conferring with the conversant and astute salesman, Hettie soon selected some exquisite furniture for her parlor, her living room and her bed rooms, as well as dining room and kitchen furniture; also tapestries, carpets, rugs, matting, etc. Her purchases, in fact, included all essential requisites. Hence the progressive Michelbach got the order to fit out the house from top to bottom.
